

African Peaceful Weekend 2019

We proudly invite you to the first African Peaceful Weekend. On Saturday, July 27th 2019 we will have a football tournament and in the evening a show with Njie B, a Gambian Reggae artist.

Our project is supported by TAKT (Tübingen aktiv gegen Diskriminierung), and we aim to bring people together to play football and to celebrate in peace. We want to open a space to speak about racism and discrimination in general. We wish to come together without violence.

African Peaceful Tournament

On Saturday, July 27th 2019 we invite you to play football. All teams are welcome!
When: Saturday, 27 2019, 1pm-6pm

Bring your football shoes and a good mood! It is a non-violant friendly game.
If you want to register your team, please be there before 1.30pm.

Njie B on the African Peaceful Weekend

On Saturday, 27th July 2019, 11pm, Epple Haus Tübingen, Karlstr. 13, 72072 Tübingen

The coming back of Njie B

Njie B is a Reggae artist born and raised in Gambia, West Africa. Gambia is also called the Smiling Coast and is known as the African capital of Reggae. One of its well known stars is Njie B. He is singing since many years, speaking about the struggle of young Africans, singing about love and togetherness and promoting projects concerning young people. He is residing in Sweden and we proudly invite him to the former German capital of Reggae: Tübingen.

Gambians live in Tübingen since more than 30 years and we welcome newcomers every year. The Gambian community is growing and so are the positive developments but also problems and conflicts. Poverty, racism, isolation and violence caused by hard living conditions and lack of resources are some reasons why members of the young Gambian community find every day life challenging.

Music plays a major role in Gambia. Music brings people of different backgrounds together and is a way to express feelings from sadness to happiness. That is why we have chosen music to celebrate in peace.

We thank Njie B for sharing his ideas and talent with us and are looking forward to a peaceful show. The come back of Njie B! The come back of peacefulness!

TAKT (Tübingen aktiv gegen Diskriminierung) is a project and a cooperation between the City of Tübingen and adis e.V. We aim to reduce discrimination, racism and violence in Tübingen. We want to support peace and Empowerment.

The „African peaceful weekend“ is a project coordinated by young Gambians. We want to bring people together to discuss, share ideas and celebrate. We thank TAKT for his support.
